

Haitian migrant workers pick sweet potatoes in Halifax county.

This worker uses a brightly colored scarf to hold up her shirt as she leans over picking up sweet potatoes by hand. Other workers can be seen filling buckets and taking them to the old school bus to load into crates for processing.

This is one of two paintings in the series that depicts a scarf just as it is shown in the original photo instead of a red bandana.