

An early morning photograph in Halifax county. Workers dress in rain ponchos and pick the mature, lower tobacco leaves off each plant by hand. Workers walk side by side down the very wet rows of tobacco, gathering bundles under their arms. They are then stacked and loaded into a tractor.

